Phrasal Verbs:* "BREAK DOWN"

Hoa: It 's so difficult that I couldn't do anything in my test. Maybe I'll fail this exam and I can't graduate this semester. Oh my God, my father will kill me. You know he is very strict and I am scared of him.

Salah: You 'll be fine. Don't break down like that.

Hoa: Break down? What do you mean? I don't know "break down".

Salah: It means to lose control of yourself.

Hoa: Oh, I cannot stop. Sorry.

The next day, Salah comes to take Hoa to school. He knocks on the door, but it seems to be quiet. He thinks, "Something is wrong inside," and he intends to break down the door. But at that time, Hoa appears on the other side.

Salah: Hoa! Hoa! Where are you?!

Hoa: Hey Salah, what are you doing with my door? You are going to break it down!

Salah: You are here? I thought you did something stupid inside your apartment.

Hoa: No way. I'm so young, I 'm just 18 years old. Why do I have to do that silliness? ...

Salah: Oh really?!

Hoa: And you know, my father... I talked with my father last night. Yes, he advised me to try my best one more time and I would be successful.

Salah: Yeah, I think so.

Hoa: OK. Thank you so much. And he says that you are the best friend I have.

Salah: Oh! Come on. We have to go to school right now. We'll be late.

Hoa: Yeah, I forgot. Let's go.
